Food for Thought:

Recently I read this:

When it all gets too much I try to be simple. Like Michael Leunig. Whose wisdom makes me weep and laugh at the same time:

"Today is not the international day of the cup. No day is. Yet the cup is one of humanity's most important inventions. It is ancient, universal and timeless. It has no moving parts. It is simple. It is perfect. Without the cup, life would be very difficult. We could live without computers but not without the cup. Strangely, but not surprisingly there is no International Day of the Cup. The things that matter most in life are not celebrated and win no awards." Michael Leunig
